Issue 38 17/04/2025: Looking beyond Europe: Global Gender Gap Report 2024

Dear all,

We hope this email finds you well.

In addition to the European Commission's insights, the World Economic Forum's Global Gender Gap Report 2024 offers a broader, global perspective on gender equality trends.

Key takeaways from the 2024 edition include:

- Progress remains slow: At the current pace, global gender equality is still five generations away.
- Political representation shows minor gains, but women remain underrepresented in leadership roles worldwide.
- Some regions demonstrate encouraging progress in education and health, but gaps in economic empowerment persist significantly.
- The report highlights the transformative potential of inclusive policy frameworks, especially in an historic year with pivotal elections in many countries.

This global snapshot offers valuable context for understanding the EU's own challenges and achievements, and it reinforces the importance of integrated efforts at every level—from local initiatives to international policy.
